

Willkie Backs G. O. P. Bloc For Full Neutrality Recall

Demand Would Present Bipartisan Outlook to Movement; Senators
Are Leaders
Discussion Held
Austin, Bridges, Gurney
Confer With Willkie on Matter

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—With opponents crying "gag rule," the Senate foreign relations committee voted 12 to 9 today to hold closed hearings, beginning tomorrow, on the House-approved ship arming bill.

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) said that the committee had voted to conclude the hearings at 5 p. m., Friday. He added that Secretary of State Hull probably would be the first witness.

Asserting that the procedure was "gag rule," Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) told reporters that opponents of the legislation had been denied a right to present all of the witnesses they wished to be heard because of the time limitation.

Senator Clark (D., Mo.) said he had served notice on the meeting that he would not be bound by any rules of secrecy and would feel free to discuss publicly the testimony that was given behind closed doors.

The 12 to 9 vote came on a motion by Senator Glass (D., Va.) for closed hearings.

Favoring the motion were Senators Connally, George (D., Ga.), Wagner (D., N. Y.), Thomas (D., Utah), Murray (D., Mont.), Pepper (D., Fla.), Green (D., R. I.), Barkley (D., Ky.), Cuffey (D., Pa.), Glass, Lee (D., Okla.), and Tamm (D., Del.). George and Wagner were absent but voted by proxy.

Opposed were Senators Gillette (D., Iowa), Clark (D., Mo.), Johnson (R., Calif.), Capper (R., Kan.), La Follette, Vandenberg (R., Mich.), White (R., Me.), Shipstead (R., Minn.), and Nye (R., N. D.).

Subsequently, Clark moved that since the hearings were not to be public that no hearings be held. The committee voted this down, 14 to 7, with White and Gillette shifting to the majority.

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—A group of Republican senators, actively backed by Wendell L. Willkie, were reported today to demand outright repeal of the neutrality act.

Such a demand would impart a bipartisan character to the complete repeal movement, for Democratic Senators Glass (Va.), Pepper (Fla.) and others already have announced that they would work to wipe the legislation off the books in the forthcoming test.

Leaders of the Republican repeal group in the Senate were reported reliably to be Senator Austin (R.-Vt.), the assistant minority leader, Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) and Senator Gurney (R.-S.D.).

Informants said they had discussed the neutrality issue with Willkie and had agreed with him that the party should take aggressive leadership in revision of the present statute.

Mayor Heiselman Gives Accounting to Electors

Partial List of Improvements in City
Service; Points to Promises Made to Voters Two Years Ago Are Carried Through His Term

Mayor C. J. Heiselman in an accounting to the citizens of Kingston of the city administration for the following to The Freeman the past two years, has submitted for publication. The accounting originally intended for his opening campaign address last week was not delivered because of death in the mayor's family.

It is right and proper that public officials, seeking re-election, should make an accounting of their stewardship to the electors. In that manner, the voters have an opportunity to evaluate the job that has been done and decide for themselves if they want to employ their general manager for two more years.

Promises Made and Kept
Two years ago I made a similar accounting to the voters and they made their decision. At the polls they gave their overwhelming endorsement and approval of the manner in which we were conducting the city's affairs.

Two years ago I promised to give to my job the same tireless devotion, the same type of public service, the same business principles in government, the same humane treatment of problems affecting the unemployed and those in distress, the same development of public improvements and community service that had characterized my previous term.

Two years ago I promised that our administration would be conducted upon just, fair and sound principles, and that I would give the best that was in me for all of the citizens of Kingston, regardless of race, creed, color or political affiliation.

These were not insincere promises, made to catch votes. They were solemnly made, as verbal contracts with the people and I am glad to be able to say that they were conscientiously carried out.

A Better Kingston
Our administration, since its inception, has done many things for the good of Kingston. These things have made Kingston a healthier, happier place in which to live.

We have improved and expanded municipal services and at the same time have reduced the tax rate. This has been accomplished by the application of sound business principles to the problems of government. Waste and extravagance have been eliminated. Today the city gets a full dollar's worth for every dollar expended.

The money of the taxpayer has not been squandered to build up a political machine but has been spent for the benefit of the people.

Municipal experts judge the quality of local government by the quality and quantity of municipal services and by the cost thereof. The improvements in municipal service the people well know. Here is a partial list:

Cleaner, better lighted, better paved streets.
Establishment of one of the best playground and recreation programs in the state.
One of the lowest juvenile delinquency rates in the state.
One of the outstanding traffic safety records in the United States (no persons killed in traffic accidents in 1941).
One of the lowest fire-loss records in history.
One of the best public health records in history (no smallpox, no diphtheria, no typhoid fever, no polio in years).
Completely rebuilt fire alarm system and increased fire fighting equipment and more trained fire fighting personnel.
Improved school system.
Miles of new sewers.
Miles of new, larger water mains.
Miles of new streets.
One of the finest floodlighted recreation plants in the country.
Improved park system.
Establishment of the merit system for the selection and promotion of all city employees.
Establishment of central parking area and enlargement of uptown parking area.
Abolition of unground local pension systems and making all employees eligible for New York State Retirement System.
Starting of new sewage treatment plant to remove pollution from Rondout Creek and Hudson river in accordance with the state public health law.
Improved snow removal and street building equipment.
Progressing plan for elimination of Broadway crossing to point where detailed plans and specifications will soon be completed and contract let.
Formation of a functioning local national defense committee cooperating with the state and federal governments in matters of civilian defense.

The question is, have these improvements been carried through? The answer is, yes.

Six Nations Join Pacific Combine

Canberra Report Says
Negotiations Are Now

Anzacs Are Ready
Australian Defenses Are Stronger Than Ever,
Curtin Says

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 20 (AP)—Completion of negotiations for a United Pacific front composed of Britain, the United States, China, the Netherlands East Indies, Australia and New Zealand was reported today in Canberra.

Australian Prime Minister John Curtin said the degree of cooperation between the participants would be substantial, and at the same time reiterated a warning that possible extension of the war in the Far East constitutes a serious menace.

Curtin declared, however, there had been no change in the situation in the Pacific and said he understood that discussions between Japan and the United States looking toward a settlement of their differences would be continued.

The Prime Minister disclosed he had conferred yesterday with air Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander-in-chief in the Far East.

He also said he had talked by telephone with Richard Casey, Australian Minister to Washington, and Sir Earle Page, special minister to London, now en route to Britain.

Stronger Than Ever
Curtin said Australia's defensive supply arrangements could be stronger than ever before.

"The Navy is at the highest pitch of efficiency, the home defense army is well-trained, equipment is greatly improved, the air force's strength is largely increased and production of armaments is growing weekly," Curtin declared.

The Melbourne Herald said it would be folly to pretend that Japanese aggression could be prevented without the fullest aid from the United States. "The only power able to put in the Pacific a

Highland Gets Pump and Water

McCaffery Obtains Needed
Relief From U. S.
Priorities Board

The Highland water district, supplying the village of Highland with its water supply, which has been running so low that it was necessary to pump water into the reservoir from Black creek, was afforded relief today when the new pump was installed and placed in operation.

The water district had been using a temporary pump, capable of pumping but 150 gallons a minute, while the new pump now in operation will pump 300 gallons a minute.

When the water situation became serious in Highland it was decided to call in Edward I. McCaffery of this city, a consulting engineer, who designed the new pumping system now in operation.

Orient Is Tense as Reds' Peril Mounts; Japan at Crossroads; Hull Denounces Kearny Affair

Hull's Announcement Is Released After
Navy's Report About
Torpedoing
11 Are 'Missing'
No Clarification Is Given
Why 11 Men Are Not Reported

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Secretary Hull today characterized the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny as another in a series of incidents illustrating Adolf Hitler's known and confessed effort to seize control of the seas as well as the continents.

Hitler has notified all nations to keep their ships out of an area covering a large portion of the North Atlantic on penalty of having these ships sunk, Hull told his press conference, because he proposes to drive all other nations off the seas by intimidation.

If such intimidation were successful, the secretary continued, he supposed Hitler then would want other nations to get off the earth.

The secretary of state's outspoken denunciation of the attack on the Kearny followed a navy announcement that 10 of the destroyer's crew had been injured and that 11 were "missing" and the direct charge that the attack was by "a submarine, undoubtedly German."

The torpedoing represented the first personnel losses suffered by the Atlantic fleet.

Asked whether the United States had made or was contemplating a diplomatic protest to Germany, Hull replied with asperity that one does not often send diplomatic notes to international highwaymen.

When the torpedoing of the new 1,630-ton destroyer was first made known Friday, the navy's communique said "no casualties were indicated" and relief tempered the capital's reaction to the incident.

Last night, however, the navy received further information—the wounded Kearny had made her way to an undisclosed port and reported her 21 casualties.

It was the first time since Japanese warplanes bombed and machine gunned the U. S. gunboat Panay on the Yangtze river in China that a unit of the navy has had losses due to belligerent action. The toll in the Panay bombing in December 1937, was 2 dead and 43 injured.

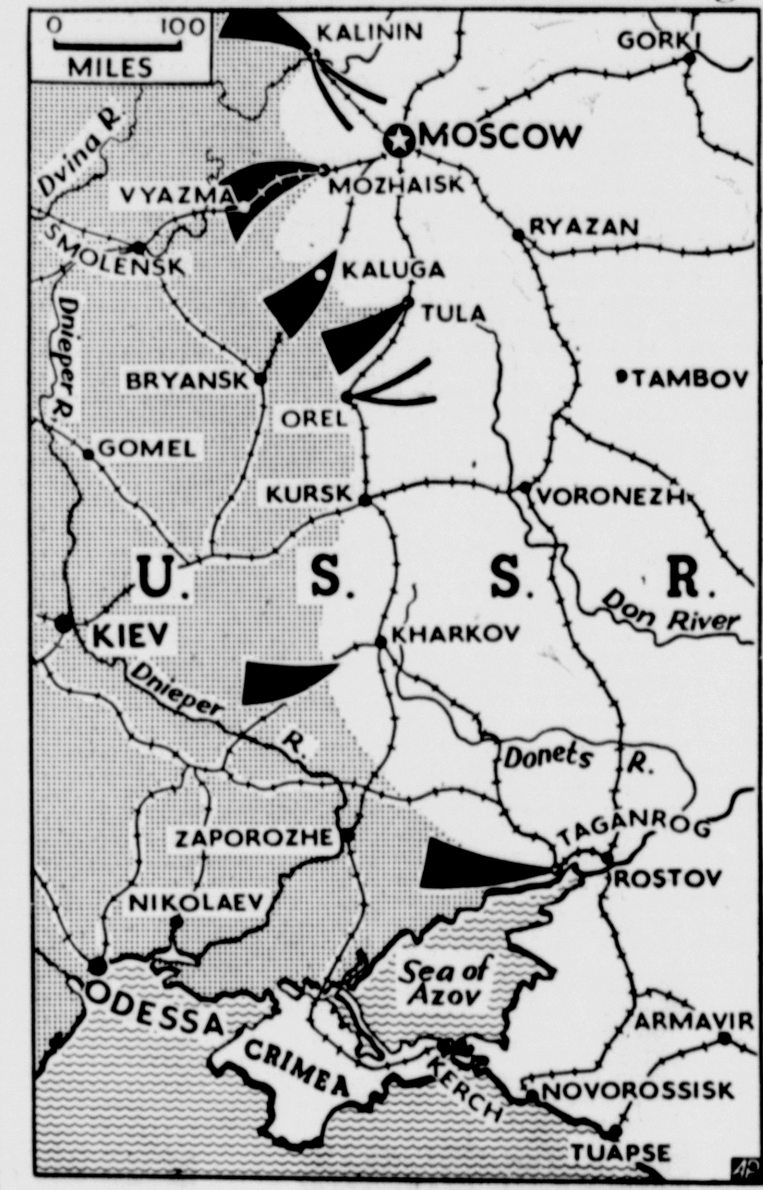

The navy's announcement last night was almost as meagre as the original communique on the torpedoing. It volunteered no details on why the 11 men were considered "missing," or on the nature of the injuries of the other 10. The only amplification was that one man was "critically injured, one seriously injured, and eight minor injuries."

The character of the encounter between the Kearny and the submarine, however, led informed quarters here to write off the missing as dead. It was their belief that the men either had been blown out of the ship when the torpedo exploded, or else that they were trapped when watertight bulkheads were closed after the ship had been hit.

One navy officer said that a person familiar with destroyers could readily identify the battle stations at which the missing men probably were when the torpedo struck, but he declined to volunteer the information.

However, since four of the missing

Nazis Claim Moscow Break-Through

Berlin reported officially that German troops have broken through an "especially strong" Russian defense system before Moscow, and also reported that Hitler's S. S. troops have captured Tuganov, just 30 miles short of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasian oil fields.

Soviet and London dispatches indicated the Moscow break-through was in the Moshaisk sector. The Nazis said that the thrust toward Rostov, combined with a drive on Kharkov was pursuing the southern Red Army defending the Donets basin. Russian reports that counterattacks (open arrows) had recaptured Kalinin and Orel were denied in Berlin.

1939 Registrations

Kingston's registration of voters for the November election closed Saturday night with a total of 14,032 registered during the four days, a decrease of 506 from the figures of 1939, another mayoralty year, and a drop of 2,093 from the 1940 figures, a presidential year.

The registration in 1939 was 14,538, as compared with 16,125 in 1940, the highest registration in the city's history.

The registration this year showed only three districts in the 20 election districts of the city showing a slight increase over the 1939 figures. In the second district of the second ward there was an increase of 27, while the first district of the Tenth Ward showed an increase of 35, and the first district of the Twelfth Ward an increase of 16.

In the other 17 election districts there was a decrease. The greatest decrease was shown in the Sixth Ward, which is heavily Democratic, and also in the Eleventh Ward, which is Republican.

The registration on Saturday, and the total registration for the four days follows:

Chinese Spokesman Says Japan Has 29 Divisions at Russia's Back Door in Manchoukuo

Moscow Braces
Russians Prepare Last Ditch Stand Against Germans

(By The Associated Press)
Heightened tension in the Far East, an increasingly grave situation for Moscow and indeed all Russia and the controversy between the United States and Germany over the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny were today's outstanding developments in the war and threats of war girding the earth.

World news formed a mosaic in which each piece fit into the whole pattern.

Japan's new premier, General Eiki Tojo, declaring that Japan had reached a crossroads in her destiny, called for "iron unity among all the fighting arms and the people to cope with the encirclement of Japan by foreign powers." Japan imposed a drastic censorship on mail.

A Chinese army spokesman estimated that Japan had massed the equivalent of 29 divisions in Manchukuo at Soviet Russia's Siberian "back door." And that three or four more divisions were en route there.

Moscow, under a state of siege proclaimed by Premier Stalin, braced for the impact of German forces only 57 miles away at one point.

The German high command said that new wedges had been driven into the Moscow defenses, with two more Red army groups wiped out, and that German soldiers and their allies in southern Russia were sweeping anew toward the industrial Donets Basin and Rostov, gateway to the oil riches of the Caucasus.

From German-occupied territories came new reports of unrest and violence. The German commander of the Nantes region in occupied France was assassinated, Vichy reports said, and the Greek government in exile declared that 15,000 Greeks had died in "a series of brutal massacres" by Bulgars.

Authorized Germans expressed strong resentment of a short-vaived address yesterday by U. S. Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long in which the American suggested that Germany in calling on Italy for fighting men, might make of Italy "another Russia."

The Germans called it a low trick to intimate that Italy and Germany ever could be separated and Fascist circles in Rome termed the speech "a propaganda move" made ridiculous by the "bond of alliance and the ideals between the two nations."

Dr. Walter Funk, German economic minister and Reichsbank president, accepting an honorary degree from the University of Rome, declared that Germany already had started using Russia's resources and predicted barter trade between Axis-dominated Europe and American countries after the war.

He said that the war had nearly troubled German-Italian trade and that the British blockade, had been "finally broken."

The official German news agency, D.N.B., published an eye-witness account of a U-boat attack on a British North Atlantic convoy last week in which it said that one of the two destroyers claimed sunk apparently was one of the 50 such craft which the United States had traded with (Continued on Page Seven) on Anglo Convoy

Berlin, Oct. 20 (AP)—A DNB eye-witness account of the German submarine attack on a British convoy in the North Atlantic last week declared today that one of two destroyers sunk apparently was one of the former United States warships traded to Britain for bases.

The news agency account said that a lone submarine opened the attack in which the high command said Saturday that 10 freighters and two destroyers were sunk.

Flames and explosions from three sinking vessels, DNB's anonymous eye-witness reported, attracted other U-boats to the scene of the mid-ocean battle which lasted at least three days and nights.

Mr. Martucci told the court that he had not come in prepared to argue that point since he had believed that objection would be made on the grounds that the committee had no power to fill a vacancy since there had been no name selected at the caucus and that therefore no vacancy had been created since no name had been proposed for the office to the caucus and therefore a vacancy could not exist. He said he would

British Workers Demand Red Help

500,000 Arms Employees Say Britain Is Letting Russians Down

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

One of the striking developments of the week-end is the demand of half a million workers in 300 key factories of England that the government immediately open a second battle front to aid Russia.

The suspicion that Britain is letting Russia down was voiced at the conference of the National Council of Engineering and Allied Trade Shop Stewards who voted this demand. The chief speaker, Walter Swanson, declared:

"We need to end now all illusions that others have the duty of doing all the dying and fighting while we in Britain are not called upon to make such gigantic sacrifices."

This isn't the first time that such a call has been made upon the British government.

If the people of England feel this way about the matter, it's easy to understand why many Americans should be puzzled over the inability of the British to render greater aid to their new ally. I have been hearing that question raised daily for weeks now, and down in Tulsa, Oklahoma, where I talked on the war at the week-end, that was one of the persistent queries shot at me.

Easy to Answer

Well, it's easy to answer the specific inquiry as to why the British haven't tried an invasion of western Europe, because that great operation has been so far from feasible that it would have been committing hara-kiri to attempt it. However, one must admit that it's far more difficult to explain why some other measure hasn't been undertaken—a more vigorous bombing of Berlin, for instance.

One can understand the feeling of the British public that perhaps the government has been playing it a bit too safe. This is a crisis in which great risks must be taken. War is largely a risk, and one reason why Hitler has achieved such great successes is because he not only has grasped greedily at opportunity but has taken chances.

We have an excellent illustration of great daring in the move of the Russians in rushing troops from the Far East to bolster their western fighting front, despite the threat of a Japanese attack on Siberia.

Only the British war command is capable of deciding what measure would best serve the allied interests in this Russian crisis. Still, there are several obvious possibilities quite apart from an invasion of the continent across the English channel—an operation so hazardous under conditions which have existed thus far that Britain couldn't be expected to risk it without further preparation.

Diversion Would Help

One of those possibilities is, as has been pointed out more than once in this column, a heavy aerial bombardment of Germany, especially the capital. The German air fleet has been raising havoc in the Russian ranks, and diversion of part of this force would have been a God-send to the Muscovites.

It is true that the Royal Air Force has extended its activities in an effort to draw off Nazi war planes from Russia, and undoubtedly has succeeded up to a point. It also is true that the flying weather has been bad over considerable periods of late.

However, apparently the British command hasn't seen fit to risk men and equipment in an all-out bombardment of Berlin. It would be worth a very great sacrifice to the Senate's present attitude toward neutrality act revision.

Committee Studies Recall

The Senate foreign relations committee started formal consideration of the revision question today, taking up procedure on the House-approved legislation which would knock out the act's present prohibition against the arming of American merchant ships.

The ship-arming measure, passed by a House vote of 259 to 138 last week, is only one of the steps advocated by Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) and other members of the foreign relations committee, who believe that Congress should eliminate the provision which now prevents American vessels from entering belligerent ports or designated combat areas.

Connally has said, however, that it might be more expeditious to pass the ship-arming bill at once and then take up additional repealer legislation.

The possibility of a bi-partisan move for doing the whole job at once jeopardized any plans for piecemeal consideration of revision along the lines Connally indicated. Accordingly Senate leaders may ask President Roosevelt this week to decide whether he is willing to accept a delay on the ship-arming legislation, while attempts are being made to broaden the pending House-approved resolution so that it would provide for scrapping the rest of the neutrality act's provisions.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), a leader in the Senate minority opposing administration foreign policy, told reporters he would welcome an effort to repeal the neutrality act completely. "That would bring the issue of peace or war out in the open where it should be," he said.

In his recent message to Congress regarding neutrality revision, President Roosevelt made it clear that he wanted more than a simple amendment permitting the arming of American merchantmen, but he left action on the other points to congressional initiative. Those Republicans favoring complete repeal of the neutrality law conceded they were uncertain whether a majority of their party colleagues would go along. Informants added, however, that a determined effort would be made to get as many Republicans as possible behind the repeal proposal.

Although none of the Republican group would discuss strategy publicly, Bridges asserted that "the time has come for the Republican party to take a forward and leading attitude toward questions of foreign policy."

Pilot Is Killed

East Rutherford, N. J., Oct. 20 (AP)—Albert Ulrich, 27, of North Bergen, was killed today when the airplane he was piloting went out of control and crashed onto heavily trafficked Route 3. The plane struck two automobiles, slightly injured at least one and then skidded several hundred feet into the Jersey meadows. A passenger in the plane, Victor Johnson, 27, of Clifton, suffered a broken arm.

save Moscow right now and ensure Russia's continuance in the conflict.

Maybe the answer lies in the English characteristic of proceeding methodically and refusing to be rushed, although it would take an earthquake to make them deviate from their objective. You know that at four, come hell or high water, and then go calmly out and win a Waterloo. It will be interesting to see whether the workers' new demand will change the course of events.

Bridge Auction Is Put Off for Year by Officials

New City, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—You'll have to wait a year if you want to buy a piece of the Bear Mountain Bridge—a scheduled auction was postponed today for 12 months.

Last week, Rockland county officials announced that the bridge toll house and the west approaches would be sold to the highest bidder because the state had refused to pay $16,370.16 in back taxes.

But today the Rockland county board of supervisors, acting on an old law which allowed deferment of the sale of taxable property, voted to defer the auction for one year in order to obtain special legislation to legalize the tax.

The taxes were assessed last December, effective July 1, 1940, by the town of Stony Point, N. Y., against the privately owned Bear Mountain Hudson River Bridge Company. The company didn't pay the taxes because it sold the bridge section to the state last month for $2,275,000.

No one showed up today at the county court house to buy the bridge section, one observer said, because (A) no one appeared ready to pay off the $16,370.16 taxes (B) the county contends it is still taxable and (C) until the auction the state will have to pay itself, because the bridge is on state property.

It isn't merely because of his brawn and 37 years—he's also a patrolman with two citations for bravery earned in 14 years of police work.

Alarming

New York — If George Moreau, 35, had read his newspaper he would have known this is "no false fire alarm week."

But he didn't, so when two men robbed him of his wrist watch and raincoat he ran to the nearest fire box and turned in an alarm.

Magistrate William B. Northrop thought he should have walked through the police station. So Moreau won't need his watch for the next 30 days. He'll be in the workhouse.

Oh, Mr. Louis!

Shawangunk 'Ghost' Town Might Experience Boom

Graham, Orange county, "ghost mining town on the slopes of the Shawangunk mountains" may be transformed within a few weeks to a lively awakened community employing nearly 400 men. This became known recently with disclosure that the owners are in

New York city attempting to negotiate funds for reopening the abandoned lead and zinc mines. The first mining operation with a prospect of resumption to meet the demands for national defense, the Guyard deposits are by no means the first in New York state. In the heart of the Adirondacks, the MacIntyre Iron works which long were idle, had reopened and operations have also been intensified in northwestern New York in the vicinity of Gouverneur and Edwards. Charles McCrea and Konin Farrah, Toronto businessmen, are the owners of the lead and zinc mines near Graham, which have been idle for a quarter of a century. The history of the mines in Orange county goes back to Indian times. They were the first to discover the ore in the mountains above Neversink, and Indian relics have been found in the mouths of caves dug in the side of the Shawangunks.

To further substantiate his claim to reopen the Graham mine, Mr. Farrah has taken an option on 100 acres of land owned by Mrs. Roslyn Cox of Middletown. He said the land will be used for building machinery and installation equipment.

Mayor Heiselman Gives Accounting

provements been made at an increased cost to the taxpayer? The answer is a loud "No"; the cost has been lower than it was when our administration assumed charge of the city.

The question then is, have the tax rates been reduced by the old political trick of raising assessments?

The answer is definitely "No." Assessments have not been raised. They have been reduced about one million dollars since I became mayor.

Was this year's tax rate established with a large deficit from the preceding year?

The answer is positively "No." We ended 1940 with all bills paid and a surplus of $15,953.46.

While the federal, state and many municipal governments have piled up large deficits, the city of Kingston has not only lived within its budgetary income but has invariably ended the year with a surplus. This surplus is carried forward to reduce the amount to be raised by taxes in the following year.

Now the question is, after making many improvements and additions to buildings, schools, water works, parks, playgrounds, stadium, equipment and municipal services, and caring for the needy and unemployed, and after giving the lowest tax rates in the past 12 years, did we borrow so much money as to impair the credit of the city?

The record says emphatically "No."

City's Credit A No. 1

With the exception of bonds issued for the two schools and some equipment and street bonds, all of the bonds issued have been to provide during the depression the food, clothing, shelter, fuel and medical attention for those in distress and for purchasing materials, supplies, equipment and tools to provide work for our unemployed on city-wide work relief projects that have kept men at work creating valuable civic improvements which have increased the comfort, convenience, health, safety and education of the men, women and children of this city. It is true that thousands of dollars in bonds have been issued for these purposes but it is also true that we have paid off thousands of dollars in bonds, many issued by previous administrations. The total debt of the city has increased very little during my administration.

One of the most eloquent tributes to the financial soundness of the city government is that we borrowed money during the past year at an interest rate of one-half of one per cent per year.

All Factories Occupied

It is gratifying to be able to report that practically every foot of factory space is now occupied and that with few exceptions everyone seems to be employed. What a difference from the days when I first became mayor, when 20 per cent of our population was receiving some form of public aid and when 1,200 men were employed on PWA projects alone and many more of our citizens were without employment.

No Payless Pay Days

Speaking of municipal labor, you should remember that during the crucial days just passed many cities were having payless pay days and were reducing the pay of their employees.

But not in Kingston. We had no payless pay days. We were the only city in the state that did not reduce the pay of the workers. We saved money for the taxpayers by cutting out waste and extravagance and by adopting business methods that saved thousands of dollars.

During the past year, rates of pay of workers in the lower income brackets have been increased and a new policy established giving workers not before covered a week's vacation with pay, and a cumulative sick leave with pay, as well as providing social security for municipal employees by making them eligible for membership in the New York State Retirement System because they are not covered by the Federal Social Security law.

Every effort has been made to stimulate industrial activity and employment and to build up Kingston as a convention city.

I have been active in the development of the Hudson Valley Blossom Festival and the Hudson Valley Apple Harvest Festival, and the publicizing of our county through the press and radio. The purpose of course is to increase the sale of Ulster county apples, so that the apple producers of Ulster county will be able to spend more money in Kingston, which in turn helps our merchants and increases employment.

As the result of studies which I have been making, I expect to call a conference within the next several months of resort and other interests in Ulster and Greene counties for the purpose of forming an organization to further develop the recreation areas of the two counties and to press for highway, ski slope and other improvements enjoyed by the Adirondack area but missing in the Catskill area.

Prosperity in the Catskill mountain area means increased prosperity for Kingston.

In studying and solving the many problems affecting the well-being of the people of Kingston and our local government, I have had much cooperation from many people. I could not have done this all alone and did not do it all alone. I had plenty of help. The officials and employees of our various departments deserve great credit for the many accomplishments which make up the record of Kingston's advance in recent years. I want to also thank the officials and employees of the W.P.A. with whom I have fully cooperated and who have cooperated with me in a manner to get the most that was worth while for the city of Kingston.

In giving leadership and direction to the many policies and acts that were necessary to carry on the city's business, have you not heard given the best that was in me. My job has been my life. I have no other business connections nor have I other occupations to distract my interest and attention away from the affairs of the city.

Door Always Open

The door to my office is always open to all, and I mean all. I have not solved the problems of all of those who have appealed to me, but I have helped as many as I could. I have always been willing and ready to render to all such friendly help and advice as was in my power.

I have given unsparingly of my time to help and encourage worthy causes in all local fields of endeavor and have accepted invitations to many functions, sometimes several in one night, because I considered it my duty to be helpful to the various causes represented. I have been a full-time mayor, devoting all of my time to my job of serving the people of Kingston.

Uncertain Days Ahead

With most of the world at war or in slavery, and with the United States on the brink of war and engaged in the most stupendous national defense program in our nation's history, the trend of future events is uncertain. If full war comes, the city and its people must be protected against death and destruction from ravages of war.

If full war comes or does not come, many dislocations and readjustments must come in our daily personal lives and in the life of our city government.

We have been planning for months the manner in which to protect the city in case of war.

You May Always Be Constipated If—you don't correct faulty living habits. In the meantime to help insure gentle yet thorough bowel movements—take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets are simply wonderful not only to relieve constipation but also to stir up liver bile secretion and tone up intestinal muscular action. 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

—Adv.

As chairman of the local national defense council, I am thoroughly alive to my responsibilities and acquainted with the steps necessary to be taken in case of emergency because I have been studying the subject for months.

During the next two years, greatly increased federal taxes must be imposed to pay the tremendous cost of the lend-lease and national defense programs, and for the huge ordinary expenditures of the federal government.

Because of these increased federal taxes, and the rising cost of living which will undoubtedly continue to rise during the next two years, it is the duty of every local governmental official to keep the cost of local government to the lowest possible level.

With increased costs for labor and materials brought about by this inflationary period, it will require the greatest skill and experience in the affairs of the city to pay more for materials, supplies and wages and to reduce the tax rate.

If re-elected, I give my sincere pledge that I will use all of my long experience in municipal affairs to keep the general tax rate for 1942 and 1943 at the lowest possible level. The citizens of Kingston know that I have never broken a pledge I have ever made to them.

During the next two years, the Broadway crossing elimination will be completed after 25 years of patient waiting on the part of the citizens of Kingston. I pledge that in the prosecution of the work I will give the matter the same close and persistent attention that has been responsible for progressing the elimination to its present stage so that the interests of the city and the affected property owners will be protected. By November 1st, all detailed plans and specifications will be completed and the contract will be ready for bids. Detailed plans for the two steel bridges have already been completed and an application been made to the priorities board in Washington for the steel for the two bridges which will carry the railroad and connect Greenkill and Railroad avenues.

Can't Fool the People

Some politicians say it is easy to fool the people because they have very good forgetteries. But I do not think the people of Kingston forget and I have great faith in their good judgment.

I have served the people of Kingston long enough so that they know my policies and my methods. It is my political philosophy that a political party must be an instrument of public service if it is to win and keep public confidence and support. The best political policy to pursue, with democracy on trial all over the world, is to give the people clean, honest, good, efficient government.

I have been elected by the voters because they know my philosophy of government and approve my policies. The voters of Kingston know that I am the tool of no person or group, that I am nobody's stooge, and that I am here to serve all of the people.

We have had troublesome days ever since I have been mayor but troublesome days still loom ahead. No one knows what is in store for us during the next two years. The voters of Kingston, therefore, have a most important selection to make on Election Day. They must then hire their general manager for the next two uncertain years.

Our federal government is pouring out billions in defense of democracy. Democracy does not fully function unless all qualified citizens exercise their right of franchise and vote. You can't vote unless you register.

I urge all friends of good government who, regardless of political affiliation, have heretofore supported me at the polls, to take an active part in the campaign. I urge all citizens to analyze the facts and figures, consult the record and learn the truth. After learning the true facts, if they wish me to continue to serve the city for the next two years, I shall appreciate their support.

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

YESTERDAY: Sue Ellen is pretty depressed, and there are several reasons why. One is Rio Moore, her fiancé, who just has told her that their wedding must be postponed six months. The other is Rio's apparent attachment for Deedora Waller, who is not beautiful, but does have money. And another is a young soldier from nearby Camp Shelby named Johnny Harris. Sue Ellen dislikes Johnny very much—although sometimes dislike is pretty close to its opposite.

Chapter Six Visit To Camp

WHEN they reached home, Riv telephoned and apologized for not calling sooner. Sue Ellen could hear loud laughter and chatter and guessed that he called from the drug store. Her face burned as she thought that possibly Deedora stood listening and smiling her wide understanding smile at Riv as he talked to her.

This fact made her curt in her answers, cold and slow to respond, when Riv announced that Deedora had invited them to drive to Memphis with her that afternoon, see a show, have dinner and drive back by moonlight.

"I have a headache," she gave as an excuse. Then on the spur of the moment she invented "Ginny and I have something planned."

Riv swore softly and said: "Well—see you this evening?"

"Call me up about seven," she told him.

She was being unfair. Going with Deedora would have been the best way to stem the rising tide of gossip which had started again when Riv showed an interest in Deedora last night. She was in the wrong and just for a minute debated calling back and telling Riv she was sorry and would be glad to accept the invitation to drive to Memphis.

Just then Ginny called. "Want to drive over and see the Camp?" she asked.

For a minute Ellen Sue did not understand. "What camp?" she asked.

"Camp Shelby, goose. Toby's going over to see a man in the commissary about something and we thought you might like to go along. I'd have asked Riv, but he said—"

Sue Ellen interrupted hastily: "I'll be glad to go. Are you sure Toby will like that?"

"Toby likes what I like," said Ginny firmly. "Ready by three?"

She wore the yellow flannel suit, a frilly white blouse, a bright scarf about her curls, and stood on the veranda waiting where Toby drove up. Ginny waved to the rear seat. "You'll have that all to yourself unless we find you a beau at Camp Shelby."

"No, thank you, I don't want a beau." She slipped in and felt a wave of relief as the car sped off down the street. This would be a change. She would not need to talk, for Ginny could talk forty miles to the minute and Toby would listen all day, delighted to have the opportunity. Toby adored Ginny, who used him and cast him aside whenever a more possible escort appeared.

Only once did Ginny address her directly and that was to ask: "Anything wrong between you and Riv?"

"Nothing. We've had to postpone our wedding because of this wretched conscription."

"Why do that? Most people hurry up their weddings."

She answered coolly: "If Riv were called it would change everything we have planned."

Toby looked puzzled and Ginny unconvinced, and Sue Ellen's face burned as she realized that their reaction would be the same as that of others who heard of her postponed marriage. She tried to laugh lightly and quoted Riv's words: "After all, June is the month for brides."

Toby said dryly: "Any month's the month for brides now. I'm surprised that Riv didn't marry and get exemption on a grounds of being a dependent."

It was a surprising thing for Toby to say, for he was easy going and never one to be sarcastic.

About Johnny

ALL the way down the twisting road from Tyler Springs to Camp Shelby, Sue Ellen maintained an animated chatter with Ginny and Toby, determined to keep the subject of conversation as far removed as possible from that of her marriage.

It was a clear, beautiful fall day. They drove past neglected cotton fields and tumbledown negro shacks and stretches of pine woods. Toby spoke about the life in camp, of the number of men arriving every day. He boasted that he intended to enlist in the air corps soon, and Ginny regarded him with a pride which made something twist in Sue Ellen's heart.

Toby had always been regarded with a certain contempt by the old families of Tyler Springs, because everyone could remember when Toby was a barefooted towheaded child running about in front of his father's country store. The father moved to town and established a little business which immediately began to flourish and now rumors were afloat that the elder Tyler could show a bank balance larger than anyone in town. In fact, he gave credit to many like Ginny and her mother, who would have starved if it had not been for Tyler and Son, Grocers.

The father was ambitious that

Toby should take his place with the best, and Toby was the best, thought Sue Ellen, upright and industrious. However, gossip swept the town when Ginny Fairchild, whose mother and grandmother had been belles in the county and Ginny herself a maid of honor at the Cotton Ball in Memphis—when Ginny accepted an invitation to a club dance with Toby. It was incredible! "What was the country coming to?" everyone said.

"We want to eat, don't we?" was the answer Ginny gave, but Sue Ellen wondered sometimes if that was all. Often she surprised an expression in Ginny's shrewd brown eyes which puzzled her. Ginny liked Toby! Did she more than like him?

She thought of this now as Toby soberly spoke of his duty and Sue Ellen wondered if Toby didn't command more respect than men like Riv, who refused to accept an obligation to their country.

"Doc Warren will," said Toby. "He talked to Major Faber last evening. The Major and Johnny Harris were discussing enlistment. Did you meet Johnny Harris, Sue?"

Sue Ellen nodded. "Deedora Waller will get him," said Ginny.

"Deedora?" asked Sue Ellen incredulously.

Ginny bobbed her black head. "Deedora pretends that she likes Riv, but don't let her fool you. You have nothing to worry about there, really. I heard that she met this Harris in Washington late in the summer. He has money, he's from the north, and she's tired of Riv and she'd take up with Johnny Harris in a minute."

"I understand that Harris wants to buy a plantation down here. That he said have been sent to another camp but wanted to have a chance to look over this part of the country. I guess his father has plenty of influence at Washington," volunteered Toby.

"Too many northerners have shown an interest in our land," said Sue Ellen hotly. "They're all alike. Greedy and grasping, and taking advantage of our bad luck to grab our possessions. I hate them."

Toby eyed her queerly. "A piece of property ceases to be a possession when it's mortgaged to the hilt and the owner is unable to pay the interest. There's no reason why Harris or any other Yankee shouldn't take advantage of a bargain."

Ginny stirred uneasily and whispered something to Toby and they drove the short distance into camp with no further attempt at conversation.

It was silly to get so upset over Toby's chance remark. It was none of her business if Johnny Harris planned to buy a Mississippi plantation, but she could not help but think how dreadful it would be if Belle Acres should fall in strange hands before she could marry Riv and take possession of it.

New Change

NOW they approached the camp and Toby pointed to the barracks spread out before them. "There's where we'll all be soon," he declared with a grin.

He parked the car and insisted that he must guide them about before taking care of his business at the commissary. Finally they arrived at a recreation center and here Toby left them.

Sue Ellen and Ginny entered a great bare room and found a small group scattered near a far door. Just beyond this group stood a piano and from behind it Johnny Harris came forward rapidly to greet them.

"I thought you were driving to Memphis with Deedora Waller," said Ginny as she took his hand.

He spoke to her first, then turned with a smile to greet Sue Ellen. "I was to go, but Deedora telephoned that she had a previous engagement, which she had forgotten. This is really delightful."

"This is the last thing I should have wanted to happen," said Sue Ellen to herself, making a masterly attempt to be casual and chatty, as Ginny began a running fire of questions about the camp and the discipline and routine. "The less you see of this man, the better," Susan Eleanor Fairhope. He puts you in a perfect rage whenever you meet him, he thinks himself a candidate for your friendship, just because his father had a love affair with your aunt. In the midst of this mental soliloquy, Ginny proposed, "Sing for us, Sue. There's a piano; try it."

"Please do," urged Johnny Harris.

Sue Ellen made an excuse and started to move away from them down the hall, but Ginny followed. "What a fool you are," she scolded. "Here's your chance to show Riv and that northern girl that it's nothing to you if they go off together. You can have fun, Johnny Harris is crazy about you."

"Crazy about me! That's ridiculous. I don't know him and you just told me not more than a half hour ago that Deedora wants him. He was at the dance last night and was with her constantly."

"Of course he was. She was the only girl he knew there, but not the only one he wants to know. Did you see his face light up like a Christmas candle when you appeared? Nothing could make Deedora wilder than to hear you were with Johnny Harris while she was off with Riv."

"She'll probably never know," said Sue Ellen indifferently. "and Riv will find out and be furious. I could have gone with Riv and Deedora this afternoon. They didn't plan a twosome."

Orient Is Tense As Red Peril Grows

Britain for western hemisphere bases.

Proclaims Siege
Emphasizing the seriousness of the situation confronting the Soviet capital was a decree by Russian Premier Joseph Stalin proclaiming a state of siege in the city.

The proclamation appealed to the Moscow population to lend all possible aid to the defending Red army, ordered summary execution of provocateurs and spies and placed all traffic under strict supervision.

The Russians reported that gigantic battles were raging on the two main approaches to the city—in the region on Mozhaisk and Maloyaroslavets, which are 57 miles airline west and 65 miles south of the city.

The Germans declared their armies had pierced strong Russian defenses at several points on the central front before Moscow, and said that fierce Soviet counterattacks had failed to pinch off the spearheads.

Two additional Red army groups were encircled and wiped out in the new German thrusts, dispatches from Berlin said, and an additional 7,000 Russian prisoners were reported added to the staggering total the Germans already claimed to have taken.

London sources said the pace of the Germans' grand offensive appeared to be abating compared with the first stages of the drive, started October 3, but they found "no evidence that the weight of the assault is slowing up."

With snow covering the Russian plains on the central front weather conditions had become generally "unfavorable for active operations."

From a little talked of sector of the vast front—the northern part where the Finns are in action—there was word that the Finnish drive north from Petrozavodsk along the Murmansk-Leningrad railway skirting Lake Onega on the west was meeting fierce Russian resistance.

Germans Lose 4,000,000

The official Communist newspaper Pravda declared that the Germans had lost nearly 4,000,000 in killed and wounded since the invasion started June 22 but "still these accursed locusts come on."

On the southern front the Germans said the Russians were retreating everywhere before a renewed German offensive which the Nazi high command said had resulted in capture of Taganrog on the north shore of the Sea of Azov.

This reported success would place the Nazi battlefronts only 30 miles from the Don river port of Rostov, logical springboard for a drive into the rich Caucasian oil fields.

Clamor in Britain for the opening of a British land front against Germany to relieve the Russians was raised again.

Factory stewards representing arms workers in 300 key workshops in the land adopted a statement in which they said they insisted "on the immediate opening of a second front." The British government has rejected similar proposals in the past.

Possibility that the reverses already suffered by the Russians have affected their food supplies so seriously that they may have to turn to the United States for grain and other staples was suggested by the Agriculture Department officials in Washington.

While the war in Russia raged on with increasing violence, a lull descended on the western air front. Only a few German bombers were reported over Britain during the night, and the British said bad weather had prevented their planes from attacking Germany.

On the diplomatic front the British and Russians scored a success with the announcement that Afghanistan, responding to what were described in London as friendly representations, had decided to expel all German and Italian nationals from the country. The decision closed the last gap in the 2,000-mile political and military front the British are building across southwestern Asia.

Tojo Issues Orders

Japan's premier-war minister, General Tojo, whose job it is to break the impasse Japan has reached in international policy, issued an order to the empire's armed forces and the people for "iron unity" to cope with the encirclement of Japan by foreign powers.

By chance or design this coincided with an announcement by Sweden by Australian Prime Minister John Curtin that the United States, Britain, Netherlands East Indies, New Zealand and Australia had agreed on "substantial" cooperation in event of extension of the war.

Dispatches from Sydney pictured this cooperation as a united Pacific front for which negotiations had just been completed. Principles in the negotiations included besides Curtin, Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander-in-chief in the Far East; Richard Casey, Australian Minister to Washington and Sir Earle Page, special Australian minister to London, now enroute to Britain.

Tojo in his order of the day and an address to war office officials, stressed that Japan must be prepared to sacrifice all to meet this the foreign office organ, the Japan Times and Advertiser, displayed a prediction that the Tojo government would make few changes in policy but carry it out more forcefully.

The Chungking spokesman who said that Japanese were missing in Manchukuo also reported they were rushing more men and supplies into French Indo-China and concentrating naval forces in the Gulf of Thailand, Camranh Bay and off Hainan Island, all north of the British Bastion at Singapore.

Hull Denounces Kearny Affair

ing were firemen and three watermen, the belief was that one of the Kearny's engine rooms had been hit.

Offers No Explanation
The navy offered no explanation why more than two days had elapsed between the announcement of the torpedoing and the disclosure of casualties.

One explanation was that the Kearny flashed only the briefest of reports after she was hit 350 miles southwest of Iceland while on patrol duty early Friday and then resumed radio silence, so as not to advertise her position to other raiders she limped her wounded way into port.

The navy announcement last night was significant in that it placed the responsibility for the attack on a U-boat. In the clash between the Greer and a submarine early in September, the navy reports made no effort to indicate the nationality of the undersea raider, although Berlin subsequently acknowledged that it was a U-boat which missed the destroyer with two torpedoes. Apparently the submarine, like the Greer, escaped unscathed in that shooting episode.

Nazi authorities thus far have said that they have received no word from any German ship about the Kearny. Going a step farther, the German radio has charged that the Kearny incident was purposely "trumped up" by administration officials to inflame the nation against the Reich.

The assumption here was that the navy believed it possessed positive proof of the submarine's nationality, but there was no hint how it was obtained. One conjecture was that some of the Kearny's crew caught a glimpse of the undersea boat before or during the engagement, but the opportunity for such observation is usually remote under the circumstances indicated.

In its supplementary announcement on the incident the navy, for the first time since the outbreak of the European war, found itself using the long since familiar language of British admiralty communications: "The next of kin of the missing" "have been notified."

Homer Rodeheaver Gives Highlight Appearance of State W. C. T. U. Convention

'Salesman of Song' Is Heard at St. James Church Last Night by Big Audience

Homer A. Rodeheaver, "salesman of song," and one of the most colorful personalities in the religious world of today, filled St. James Methodist Church to capacity Sunday night with an audience of men, women and children, who had assembled to hear him sing, play his trombone and deliver a temperance address.

Mr. Rodeheaver's appearance last night was one of the highlights of the 68th annual state convention of the W. C. T. U., which closes on Tuesday evening in St. James Methodist Church where all of the sessions are being held.

The organ prelude, "Toccata in Fugue, B. Minor" by Bach was played by Mrs. Ella Eltinge. Two soprano solos were sung. Mrs. Henry Terpenning, Jr. sang "Tomorrow Comes the Song," by Paul Ambrose and Miss R. Grace Mills sang "Victory" a W. C. T. U. song.

Song leader with Evangelist Billy Sunday for more than 20 years, Mr. Rodeheaver has become a national figure and is known from one end of the United States to the other as he has traveled up and down the land with his gold trombone and his silver voice.

Sunday night he said he believed that the temperance question and problem should be settled directly in the homes. He urged mothers and fathers not to serve liquors in their homes and said that the liquor interests were using propaganda to impress upon the minds of the young folks that to be popular one had to drink and smoke.

Blames Women

Rodeheaver urged the young girls not to smoke cigarettes and the young men to abstain from the use of liquor. He said that he was sorry to say it, but the women were largely to blame for the repeal of the 18th Amendment. He said that the first year that women obtained the suffrage the amendment was repealed and that many good women refused to vote and stayed at home on that momentous day.

He said that those who favored the repeal of prohibition in this country had promised lower taxes, more employment and a decrease in crime. Within five years of repeal taxes had risen instead of dropped, crime had increased and millions of people were on relief.

There were four things, said Rodeheaver, that the women could do to aid in the restoration of prohibition. They were not to serve liquor in the home; boycott drugstores and grocery stores that sold liquor; talk about it politically, and become a member of the W. C. T. U.

Republican Rally

W.C.T.U. Conducts Youth Program

Saturday Sessions Feature Reports; Legion Band Makes Appearance

Saturday afternoon and evening were devoted to the youth program at the W.C.T.U. State Convention being held at St. James Methodist Church. The morning session was filled with reports, reading of the minutes and the first class in alcohol education by Mrs. Carolyn LaGrange Brooks in which the methods of teaching alcohol education for school and Sunday workers is presented.

During the afternoon further reports were given and the Youth Temperance Council officers and directors were introduced. A dinner for the young people followed the meeting at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church and was attended by 150 delegates, 50 of which were young people.

The local American Legion sponsored band under the direction of Sal Cast played during the evening service for the youth workers. Ensign Leininger, director of the state Y.T.C. publicity, gave the first address, "Youth Faces Alcohol."

He gave a statistical report showing the problems the young people face regarding the use of alcohol today. The Rev. Marvin Green, former state president, Kentucky Youth's Temperance Council, also spoke of the youth problem in "Youth Answers Alcohol." He said that in Kentucky, known for one of the "wettest" districts in the country, 45 counties have gone dry. He also told of being entertained at the homes of prominent people where cocktails were served and said that youth could be helped to solve the liquor problem if older people, especially those in high position and standing would stop serving intoxicating drinks as a part of every visit to their homes.

Greetings Are Given

These addresses were followed by words of greeting from several of the Y.T.C. officers and workers. Robert Messenger sang two baritone solos as part of the musical program. His selections were "Tschalkowsky's 'The Pilgrim's Song'" and "None But the Lonely."

Yesterday morning a prayer service was held from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock when the conference united in a worship service of prayer being led by three or four people at the same time. This was followed by the Sunday morning service and convention sermon, "The Mammion of Unrighteousness," by the Rev. Joseph W. Chasey.

Opening the afternoon service, Mrs. Harry G. Smith, organist at the Rondout Presbyterian Church, gave an organ recital, her numbers being, "Largo" by Handel, "In Summer" (fantasy) by Stebbins, and "Prayer" on motives of Lohengrin" by Wagner-Sulze. Mrs. Leroy Wood sang a soprano solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Buck.

The speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. Dutton Peterson, member of the assembly from Schuylers county and whose residence is Odessa. In speaking of the repeal of the 18th amendment, he said that there were on records in Washington, five volumes of the lobby investigation committee showing an "amazing story of deception, coercion, and emotional distortion."

He also spoke of the organization known as the Association Against Prohibition Amendment. This group was formed prior to 1919 and started forth with noble ideals believing in temperance, purity, prosperity and the banishment of bootlegging. It foresaw evils resulting from a prohibition amendment. Today it is still working against the W.C.T.U. forces and the Rev. Mr. Peterson said it had become "an organization opposed to law enforcement, promoting triumph of crime."

He explained various methods employed in propaganda such as re-writing articles and slipping in phrases. Propaganda is at its height of perfection in this country today. He warned the delegates to watch for it "detect, evaluate and ignore." In order to counteract this vicious problem, people must use propaganda of the form of telling and retelling only the truth and teaching the youth of the country to do the same thing building character for the future.

Two-Year Road Program Outlined

Depends Upon Approval of Voters; Would Divert Rail Funds

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—A two-year highway construction program, dependent upon approval by the voters next month of a proposal to divert $60,000,000 in grade crossing elimination funds, was outlined today by the State Public Works Department.

Superintendent A. W. Brandt explained the proposed construction would be made possible by diversion of the money for use in highway and parkway construction. Half of the total would be spent during the next two years, he said.

The program contemplates an expenditure of $54,000,000 but Brandt said a number of projects are usually abandoned so the program was purposely outlined in excess of income.

Included in the program is a parkway to be built between Goshen and Fair Oaks, Orange county, at an estimated cost of $1,300,000; approaches to the Bear Mountain Bridge, $700,000; the Roslyn Viaduct, $1,800,000; Mohawk River Turnpike, Montgomery county, $1,095,000.

Prison Librarian Hurt in Accident

Herman R. Rudolf, 34, of South Montgomery street, Walden, librarian in the Medium Security Prison at Wallkill, is under treatment for a broken arm and leg in St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh, as the result of an accident shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night on Route 208, one mile north of Wallkill.

Robert Walsh of Middletown, driver of the truck that crashed into the rear of the Rudolf car, was arraigned before Justice Seth Lippincott at Wallkill this morning charged with operating the truck while intoxicated.

Walsh pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in the Ulster county jail. His operator's license was revoked.

According to the story as gathered by State Trooper Andrew Klein of New Paltz, who arrested Walsh following the crash, Rudolf while driving on the highway had a flat tire on his auto and pulled off to the side of the road to make repairs.

While Rudolf was making repairs to the tire the truck crashed into the rear of his car, pinning Rudolf underneath.

Schirick Reserves Decision on Buley Plea for Ballot

like time to submit law on the other theory.

Agrees to Hear Matter

Justice Schirick despite the surprise of Mr. Martocci said the matter would be heard.

Haver cited Section 140 of the Election Law which fixes the time for filing petitions and certificates. He held that the law was very specific, that it provided in Subdivision 5 of Section 140, that "a certificate of party nomination for an office to be filled at the time of a general election shall be filed not later than the fifth Tuesday preceding such election."

He told the court that the certificate filed by the town clerk nomination on vacancies was a certificate of party nomination and should have been filed not later than September 30, 1941, which is the fifth Tuesday preceding November 4, Election Day.

Mr. Haver pointed out that the Democratic caucus had been held at Legion Hall, Chichester, on September 29, and that all of the town offices to be voted for had been selected except that of town clerk.

Mr. Martocci argued that all of the town offices to be filled had been named except that of town clerk and he told the court that when this was not filled there was a discussion regarding it and the caucus had then gone on record as authorizing the town clerk nomination to remain vacant and the committee on vacancies was authorized by the caucus to fill it later. On October 5 or 6 the committee of three then named Buley and the designation was filed with the office of the Board of Elections. He held that this specific action had been a part of the caucus business and that the designation was good.

It was this point that Mr. Haver said he did not attack the designation from the point that the committee had no power to make a designation but that the petition was not filed in time under the election law.

Mr. Martocci said that the attorney general in 1933 in a Wayne county action had held that "unless a caucus authorizes a committee on vacancies to fill an office for which no nomination was originally made, no nomination can be made" and he held that this indirectly said that where a caucus did authorize a committee on vacancies to act it was proper to do so.

Since Mr. Haver did not attack the petition on that theory however the court was not compelled to rule upon that matter.

In commenting upon the matter Justice Schirick said he felt that a caucus should designate the party choice at the caucus and not leave the matter to a committee on vacancies. He further indicated that he believed that since no designation had been made at the caucus, no vacancy could be considered to exist as would be the case where a designation was made by the caucus but the designation declined the designation.

Justice Schirick advised the Board of Elections to accept any petition which on its face seemed sufficient and he said that then an aggrieved party should bring proceedings. It would save considerable time, he said.

Justice Schirick withheld his decision in the matter pending Mr. Martocci's submission of additional briefs. He said the decision in the Buley case would govern action in the Redmond case which is also before the court. Redmond, present highway commissioner of the town of Shandaken, seeks an independent nomination.

Court recessed until 10 o'clock Tuesday.

Navy to prevent Japanese aggression in any direction."

The Editorial added: "There is ample evidence that the United States has put a definite end to any policy of appeasing Japan at the expense of the security of the democracies in the far east."

"Despite the eager desire of Japanese statesmen to avoid a breach with America, there remains a fundamental clash of objectives."

The newspapers said the United States could not agree to Japan's declared objective without accepting national disgrace and opening the way for future conflict.

Australia Would Follow

Australia is prepared to follow the United States' lead in a Pacific front "with all the resolution and resources it possesses," the Herald asserted.

In Canberra former Prime Minister Arthur Fadden said "Australia has been greatly encouraged by the policy (in the Far East) of the United States."

(The British radio reported today that Brooke-Popham had abandoned his trip to New Zealand to remain in Australia for further consultations there. The radio added that Walter Nash, New Zealand finance minister, was leaving for Australia to join in the talks. CBS heard the broadcast.

Purdy Will Be Brought Back Here for Re-trial

Lester Purdy of Kingston, convicted of abduction in Supreme Court on May 28, 1936, will be brought back to Ulster county for a re-trial.

Purdy, on Saturday at Hudson Falls before Supreme Court Justice Leon M. Layden, brought his case to the attention of the court on a writ of habeas corpus. Purdy, who was convicted before Justice Foster in this county in 1936, claimed that he had not been advised of his constitutional rights to be represented by counsel at all stages of the proceedings and he sought to have his case again brought to the attention of the court. Justice Layden granted the relief sought and Purdy will be brought back to Ulster county for a re-trial of the matter.

Justice Schirick declined the designation.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Book of Social Usage," etc.)

WHAT TO DO WHEN A CUP DRIPS

The young owner of a new house tells me that she is sure I would have rated her table manners "good"—until lately! "Just now," she explains, "for the life of me I can't drink my breakfast coffee without letting a drop form between my lips, that then runs down the front of my cup when I set it down, and gradually makes a ring in the saucer. I'm sure it is a new trick I have acquired lately. My husband's saucer gets a coffee ring in it too. He says perhaps I copy him, but I don't know how we can cure ourselves of this untidiness."

Since my reader says it is a new trick, the cause probably is the cups they use. If they are quite thick, and if, moreover, they have straight sides, I think that if they will change to thinner cups, or best of all those which flare outward at the rim, that the husband as well as the wife may be completely cured.

Secretary's Duties and Sympathies

Dear Mrs. Post: For almost a year, I have been employed as a secretary to a man whose life has been desperately ill for months. I am told that the end cannot be long delayed, and I am wondering what will be suitable for me to do when that sad day comes. Should I go to the house to extend my sympathy and offer to do whatever I can for the family? Or should I write a note to my employer or to his oldest daughter? Or should I telephone his house? Or, since my employer is free to call upon me for anything he wants done, should I simply wait to be told?

Answer: You should certainly go to the house. If a member of the family is in the hall, as is usual, you ask what you can do to be of use. Or if you can be spared at the office, you perhaps send up a note to your employer simply saying, "I will stay here within call for whatever you may want me to do." If given no duties, you might perhaps take your place at the telephone. If any important messages come that have to be answered, then take them to him and answer them as directed.

Write out general messages of sympathy that do not require an answer, and when quite a number have collected, send them in a bundle to him, or to other members of his family. Don't talk about sympathy, but just show it by being ready to help anyone in any way that you can.

So many requests have been made for copies of my article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the men), that I have had it printed as a leaflet and will be very glad to send it to anyone who sends a self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope in care of Kingston Daily Freeman to Emily Post, P. Michigan and Minnesota Meet in Biggest Game of Year; Injuries Worry Gophers as Game Nears

By HERB BARKER
New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—National, as well as sectional, football championship hopes will be at stake at Ann Arbor this week. There two powerful Western Conference machines, Minnesota's Gophers and Michigan's Wolverines, will collide in the most important test of the season to date. Michigan's fourth successive victory, a thrilling 14-7 conquest of Northwestern last Saturday, found the Wolverine defense thoroughly tested, especially in the later stages when Northwestern hammered away unceasingly in quest of an equalizing touchdown. Sophomore Tom Kuzma, like his predecessor, All-American Tom Harmon, a product of Gary, Ind., was Michigan's offensive star, tossing passes for both touchdowns. Michigan's defense was adequate for Northwestern but whether it can halt Minnesota is a question that remains to be answered. The Gophers, leading Pitt in routine fashion, 39-0, scored their third successive victory this season and stretched their winning streak to 11 games in a row, spread over three campaigns.

Bruce Smith Hurt
Minnesota hasn't been beaten since the next to last game on the Gophers' 1939 schedule when Iowa turned the trick, 13-9. The victory over Pitt was costly enough, however, for Bruce Smith, star full-back, was hurt and had to leave the game to join a Minnesota casualty list that includes Urban Odson, great tackle, and Bob Swelger, blocking back. Northwestern's defeat blasted the Wildcats off the undefeated list along with Columbia, Cornell and Dartmouth of the eastern "Ivy League." Rice, Baylor and Texas Christian of the Southwest Conference; Nebraska of the Big Six, and Colorado State of the Rocky Mountain Big Seven.

These casualties left the roll of major unbeaten teams at 22, three of which have been tied. Here's how they are spread geographically: East: Army, Navy, Penn, Duquesne, Fordham, Villanova, Temple and Rutgers. Middle West: Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio State, Notre Dame and Detroit. South: Duke, Clemson, Vanderbilt, Georgia (tied) and Mississippi State (tied). Southwest: Texas and Texas A&G.

Far West: Santa Clara, Rocky Mountain, Utah (tied). Most of this week's action will be centered in the central states.

Army Plays Lions
In the east such fixtures as Army-Columbia, Yale-Dartmouth, Harvard-Navy top the week's card. Columbia offers a definite threat to Army which ran its winning streak to three straight in a 20-7 conquest of Yale. Harvard, which engineered a stunning upset in whipping Dartmouth, 7-0, probably will be troublesome to undefeated Navy which was hard-pressed to stop Cornell, 14-0. Of the other undefeated eastern outfits, Fordham which easily accounted for West Virginia, 27-0, plays Texas Christian; Penn, not overly impressive in a 23-0 triumph over Princeton, tackles Maryland; Villanova faces Manhattan, trounced 26-13 by Boston College; Temple, 14-0 victor over Penn State, meets Bucknell, while Rutgers heads straight into trouble in its match with Syracuse, easy 31-0 winner over New York University.

Pitt, which hasn't scored a point in three games with the Western Conference and has yielded 85, hardly figures to give Duke a workout. Other pairings in the East include Cornell and Colgate; Boston College and Georgetown; Holy Cross and New York University; and Lafayette and Brown.

Burger in Lineup
Francis "Bud" Burger, former Kingston Yellow Jacket football player, was in the starting lineup for the Ft. Monmouth team Saturday afternoon when it met Rutgers. Rutgers took the game by 26 to 0. Burger played left guard.

Yellow Jacket Back on Long Run

Jimmy Ashdown, former Kingston High School back, now with the Kingston Yellow Jackets, is shown as he picked up a good gain in yesterday's clash with the Schenectady Merrimacs at municipal stadium. The Jackets won 19 to 6. Ashdown scored two of the Wasp's touchdowns. In the photo, Norm Palmer (41), guard of the Merrimacs and Zebelskie (35) are trying to break through the Jackets' defense to bring down the runner.

Jackets Register 19 to 6 Triumph Over Schenectady

Ashdown Paces Local Club to Win With Pair of Scores; Small Turnout Again

A small turnout of grid fans saw the Kingston Yellow Jackets rip through the Schenectady Merrimacs Sunday afternoon to win their first game in three starts by the score of 19 to 6 at municipal stadium. It was Kingston's first victory of the season against two straight losses on the stadium turf in an attempt to lure local football fans to see its games. A very small gathering watched yesterday's contest.

Jimmy Ashdown was the big gun for the Wasp Sunday. He tallied two touchdowns, one on a short plunge and the second on a 10-yard pass thrown by Vince Stoll. Ashdown's first score climaxed a long drive into the enemy territory. Walt Sikorski dashed over the chalklines for the final six-point extra point. Fred Hofbauer bottled the extra point.

Ray DeSalvatore, ace back for the Dorpian City club, saved his mates from a complete white-washing when he raced about 60 yards after he intercepted a pass that had bounded off the fingers of an intended Jack receiver. DeSalvatore's run after the interception was one of the best seen at the stadium this season.

Jackets Meet Tonight
An important meeting for all members of the Kingston Yellow Jackets will be held tonight at Nick Kaslich's parlor at 7:30 o'clock. According to Eddie Minasian, manager, the club will still continue to book games at the stadium. Minasian said this morning that some plan will be considered tonight to get the fans to attend the Wasp's contests.

'Just for Fun' Battle
Anadarko, Okla., Oct. 20 (AP)—"Just for fun," Tom La Blanc and Roddy Butler, Houston, Tex., 17-year-olds, staged a sham battle with their 22 rifles. La Blanc, standing behind an oil well pump, house, was wounded fatally as Butler fired from the top of a hill. The coroner returned a verdict of accidental death.

To Be Speaker
Dr. Roland Will, professor of history at New Paltz Normal School, will be a guest speaker at an open meeting of Zepanah Lodge, No. 131, Independent Order of B'Nai B'rith, Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Uptown Community Center, Fair and Franklin streets. The public is invited and members of the lodge are urged to invite their friends to attend. Dr. Will is a forceful speaker and is well known in this locality where he has addressed numerous gatherings.

BLOCKED PUNT LEADS TO YALE TOUCHDOWN

Captain Alan Bartholemey, Yale end, starting from the black cross, charged in to block a punt by army Halfback Henry Mazur in the first quarter of the game in New Haven, Conn., caught the ball on the fly and skirted around Mazur for a 20-yard run and the Eli's lone touchdown. The West Pointers were too stroing, however, crushing the home team 20 to 7.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Oct. 20 (The Special News Service)—You may see a pro football world series one of these years, but not until the American Leaguers show a lot better blocking than they did for Tom Harmon and John Kimbrough yesterday. . . . The question of the week is what sort of joy juice Minnesota and Michigan will find in the little brown jug Saturday. . . . Season's record long run—Notre Dame's new lightweight jerseys. Every time someone tried to tackle an Irishman by the shirt it started a run. Too much dye, the manufacturer explained. . . . Coach Swede Larson is raving about the way Joe Hunt uses his tennis footwork on the football field, changing direction without breaking his stride, but Joe is only a fourth-string back. . . . Tom Lieb asks if any good college would like to play Florida at Gainesville September 26 or November 28 next year. The Gators haven't filled those dates yet.

Today's Guest Star
Walter Stewart, Memphis Commercial Appeal: "Lou Nova is charging back toward another shot at the heavyweight championship—which is a bit like trying to set the world on fire by rubbing two wet sticks together."

Pro-gram Notes
Jack McBride, the American's coach, says it's a quarterback's dream to have Harmon and Kimbrough in the same backfield. . . . Which may explain why some of McBride's quarterbacks seemed to be dreaming during yesterday's game. . . . Harmon, Jack added, was in fine shape but Jarrin-Jaw's legs tightened up—showing the advantages of football movies over horse operas. . . . Kimbrough the cutie, claims pro football is easier than the college brand "because you don't play so much." . . . He should ask Mel Hein about that. . . . Charlie Callahan, the Americans' tub thumper, claims there were more people on the roofs outside Yankee Stadium yesterday than there were inside for last year's opener.

Last Laugh
When Fred Haney, Toledo manager, was down in Tulsa for the Texas League playoffs, a stickup guy came along one night and demanded his dough. . . . Haney hauled out his checkbook and said, "Here, this is all I have." . . . The thug grabbed it and ran. . . . Telling about it later, Fred remarked longingly, "I wish he managed an American Association team. That's one guy I could beat."

Puppy Stakes Will Be Sponsored at Annual Field Trial

Mrs. George Carruthers, Secretary, Announces Event for Verbank in November

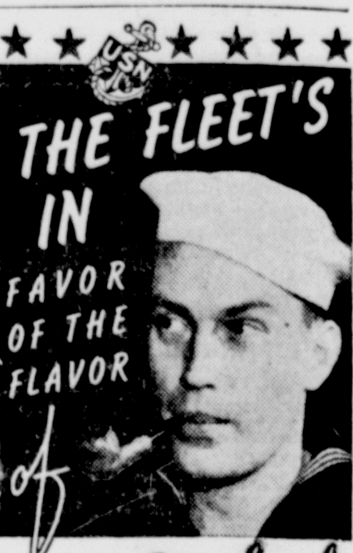

Mrs. George A. Carruthers, secretary of the Cocker Spaniel Field Trial Club of America, announced over the week-end that the organization will sponsor puppy stakes for both cockers and English springer spaniels at the annual field trials at Verbank, November 7, 8 and 9.

According to Mrs. Carruthers, "the aim of the trials is to give the younger dogs an opportunity to work under field trial conditions. The dogs will be judged on the basis of natural hunting ability, style, drive and speed." In addition to these prizes, there will be a sterling silver trophy for the winner.
